

Shellscape Pavilion: Exploring Wood–Bioplastic Composites in Architecture

The Shellscape Pavilion explores the architectural potential of waste-derived composites through a fully computational and robotic workflow. Developed as part of a PhD research project, this prototype demonstrates how circular materials, structural optimization, and mixed-reality assembly can converge in a full-scale architectural design.